- 2025 expected to bring further muted recovery driven by rising consumer demand and an increase of investments in most countries.
- Investments boosted by EU funds are still supporting growth; some FDI impact is visible in SEE.
- Weakness in manufacturing remains a downside risk for 2025 with some recovery expected finally to show.
- Consumer demand remains driven by robust labour markets (solid wage growth) and lower interest rates.
- Fiscal policy more in focus (Excessive Deficit Procedure in Hungary, Slovakia, Poland, and Romania).
- Awaited fiscal tightening measures have some downside impact on GDP growth (Slovakia) while being affected by upcoming elections (Czechia, Hungary, Poland, Romania).

Inflation & rates

- Most CE/SEE countries expected to face inflation stabilising at still elevated levels (vs. pre-pandemic) due to services inflation remaining high, upside risks in other categories. Further gradual decline expected in the euro area.

Banking sector view

- More cautious rate-cutting in CEE will keep support to banks' lending margins partly intact, although more proactive steering of the NIM may also be warranted
- Full-year 2024 data confirm a pick-up in the credit cycle in major non-EUR markets, however the corporate segment might still be relatively lagging in pace
